

“Learning Community” for Sustainable Futures

We are faced with various challenges towards a sustainable future. What should the learning of the children of the next generation be like? This open symposium will consider the meaning of learning and the solidarity of the people who support it, while looking at the field of education in Japan and around the world.

Prof. Manabu Sato

Keynote Speech

“Learning Community” for Sustainable Futures

Manabu Sato

Emeritus Professor, University of Tokyo
Visiting Professor, Beijing Normal University

Panel Discussion

Masamichi Ueno

Professor, Faculty of Human Sciences, Sophia Univ.

Yuto Kitamura

Professor, Graduate school of education, University of Tokyo

Yukiko Sawano

Professor, Faculty of Liberal Arts, Sacred Heart University

Hideki Maruyama

Professor, Faculty of Global Studies, Sophia Univ.

Facilitator

TAKAYO OGISU

Faculty of Global Studies, Sophia Univ.

Date

2023/June/24 (SAT)

15:30-17:30 (JST) (Open 15:00)

Venue

Build. 2- 1702, Sophia University (Max. 100 pers.) or Online (Zoom • no limitation)

Language

Japanese (English translation available only online)*
Free Admission / Registration Required in Advance /
Open to Students and the Public

*Simultaneous interpretation is available only when connecting Zoom. All the expenses and equipment related to communication will be borne by the participants. Be sure to bring your earphones when you hear ZOOM audio from your mobile at the venue.

Onsite

Register Here

Online

Organizer : Sophia University , 59th Japan Comparative Education Society Annual Conference

Co-organizer : Department of Education, Sophia -ESD Project

Co-operation : Institute of East Asian Education, Sophia GED

Contact: un-weeks-co@sophia.ac.jp